PRACTICE TIP: UNDERSTAND AND MANAGE DIGITAL INFORMATION

Craig Ball is, by anyone's measure, an e-discovery expert. He began his latest post, "The Virtues of Fielding" this way: "I am a member of the Typewriter Generation. With pencil and ink, we stored information on paper and termed them 'documents.' Not surprisingly, members of my generation tend to think of stored information in terms of tangible and authoritative things we persist in calling 'documents.'"

Whether you are an e-discovery pro or a lawyer who doesn't deal with the subject matter at all, this provocative post will give you insight into how digital information should be managed today.

TECH TIP: ANNOTATE YOUR DOCUMENTS WITH THIS HANDY APP

iPad users, if you like TrialPad and TranscriptPad, you will be interested to know that LIT SOFTWARE, the company that released those apps has now released DocReviewPad which applies Bates numbers to documents and then allows the lawyer to review, annotate and apply codes on an iPad before releasing them for production. It also makes it easy to prepare a privilege log. See reviews from iPhoneJD and the iPad Notebook blog.

"Knowing When to Say 'No' to a Client (Due to the Nature of the Client's Issue)" will be the topic of the Aug. 6 meeting of the Lawyers Helping Lawyers monthly discussion group. Each meeting, always the first Thursday of each
